POOR PEOPLE'S CAMPAIGN

Administration Stiffens Attitude Towards Demonstration

In the past 24 hours there has been definite evidence of a stiffening attitude on the part of the Administration in terms of the police becoming more forceful in the enforcement of public and police regulations.

A planned march on the White House scheduled for 6 June by the poor people's representatives was called off because they were told that the White House had issued instructions for the march to be "knocked off" for if it were not, the police would arrest each and every one of the participants.
